All-American Murder James Patterson

He was a college All-American, the son of a Connecticut University football hero, who became the youngest player in the NFL and later a Super Bowl veteran. A star tight end for the New England Patriots, who extended his contract for a record $40 million, Aaron Hernandez was living the dream. His every move as a professional athlete played out in the headlines, yet he led a secret life—one that ended in a maximum-security prison. Between the summers of 2012 and 2013, he was linked to a series of violent incidents culminating in the death of Odin Lloyd, a semi-pro football player who dated the sister of Hernandez's fiancée. Drawing on original and in-depth reporting, this is an explosive true story of a life cut short in the dark shadow of fame.

Dark in Death JD Robb

On a chilly February night, during a screening of Hitchcock's Psycho in midtown, someone sunk an ice pick into the back of Chanel Rylan's neck, then disappeared into the crowd of drunks and tourists in Times Square. As Eve Dallas puzzles over the homicide, she receives a tip from an unexpected source: an author of police thrillers who recognizes the crime—from her own book. Dallas doesn't think it's a coincidence; a recent strangulation of a sex worker closely resembles another scene out before the next victim plays an unwitting role in a murderer's deranged private drama—and only Eve can put a stop to the obsessed killer.

Fall from Grace Danielle Steel

Sydney Wells's perfect life with her wealthy, devoted husband vanishes when he dies suddenly in an accident. Widowed at forty-nine, she discovers he has failed to include her in his will. With Andrew's vicious daughters in control of his estate, and no home or money, Sydney finds a job in fashion. Out of her element, and alone in a world of shady international deals and dishonest people, she is set up by her boss and finds herself faced with criminal prosecution. Husband, safety, protection, money, and reputation gone, and faced with prison, Sydney now knows what it is to lose everything. She must rebuild and find herself again. Taking life by the horns, she is determined to forge a new life she can be proud of.

Into the Black Nowhere Meg Gardiner

When five Texas women disappear without a trace, the local authorities call in the FBI Behavioral Analysis Unit. The newest member of this elite group of criminal profilers, Caitlin Hendrix, is all too familiar with hunting society's most depraved and twisted criminals. She suspects that the women were taken by a highly confident killer who convinces victims to lower their guard. But there's no evidence that any of the victims are dead—until a dog brings home a bloody strip of fabric. Caitlin and the team find the victim's body deep in the woods, laid out in a white nightgown. Then they find a second victim, also dressed in a white nightgown. Her body is surrounded by disturbing Polaroid photos, stuck in the ground like headstones. A devastating serial killer is at work, and Hendrix will stop at nothing to catch him.

Look for Me Lisa Gardner

The home of a family of five is now a crime scene: four of them have been savagely murdered, and one—a sixteen-year-old girl—missing. Did she escape the fate of the others? Was she taken by whoever committed this heinous crime? Or is her absence evidence of something sinister? Detective D.D. Warren is on the case—but so is survivor-turned-avenger Flora Dane. Seeking different types of justice, they must make sense of the clues left behind by a young woman who, whether as victim or suspect, is silently pleading—“Look for Me.”

Looking for Hero Debbie Macomber

As far as Nash Davenport's concerned, marriage isn't shelter from the storm—it is the storm. He's a divorce attorney, himself divorced, who believes no married couple can live up to their vows. Savannah Charles believes in the value of marriage. She's a wedding planner who finds herself saying yes to Nash's proposal, even though it's strictly business. Would-be romance writer Bailey York has already failed twice at love. Which may be why she's having trouble creating a hero for her novel. What she needs is an example. She finds one in Parker Davidson. He's everything a hero should be: attractive, determined, tender, a man of substance. Parker is perfect inspiration—but he wants to be the hero in Bailey's life, not just in her book.

Night Moves Jonathan Kellerman

LAPD homicide detective Milo Sturgis knows he cannot solve every case alone. When assistance is needed, he calls on psychologist Alex Delaware to read between the lines. And if ever the good doctor's insight is called upon, it's at the scene of a murder as baffling as it is brutal. The disfigured corpse of a stranger has appeared in the upscale home of an L.A. family. There's no spilled blood, no evidence of a struggle, and without a face or hands, no way to ID the victim. As the investigation ensues, it becomes clear that this well-to-do suburban enclave has its share of curious eyes and loose lips. Though the grass may be greener on these privileged streets, there's enough dirt to bury a multitude of sins.

Poison John Lescroart

Attorney Dismas Hardy is looking forward to easing into retirement after recovering from two gunshot wounds, but he just can't seem to stay away from the courtroom. Grant Carver has been murdered. His bookkeeper Abby Jarvis is the prime suspect after police discover she's been embezzling funds from the company that has been owned by the Carver family for four generations. As Dismas prepares to defend her, he investigates the Carvers and discovers a number of closeted skeletons. It seems that Abby was not the only one who stood to profit from Grant's death. From jealous children to gold-digging girlfriends, and the target that now seems to be painted on his own back—Dismas has his work cut out for him.

The Great Alone Kristin Hannah

Ernt Allbright comes home from Vietnam a changed and volatile man. When he loses yet another job, he makes the impulsive decision to move his family to Alaska to live off the grid in America's last true frontier. Thirteen-year-old Leni, caught in the riptide of her parents' passionate, stormy relationship, dares to hope that a new land will lead to a better future for her family. Her mother, Cora, will do anything for the man she loves, even if means following him into the unknown. At first, it seems their prayers have been answered. But as winter approaches and darkness descends, Ernt's fragile mental state deteriorates and the family begins to fracture. Soon the perils outside pale in comparison to threats from within.
